TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 7.

FACTS VS. RHETORIC.

President CHAUNCEY M. DEWEY is well worth the enormous salary paid him by the New York Central Railroad Company. His beautiful rhetoric, apparent candor and charming heartiness of manner often succeed even against solid reasoning and indisputable argument. His course throughout the various investigations of the tunnel horror of Feb. 20th, has been consistent in this respect. His method of fighting is admirable from an artistic standpoint.

First of all, he has admitted that his Company is very anxious indeed to make the tunnel safe, and then says that it cannot be made safe. Of course, the Company is willing to try any experiments at lighting, and electric lights are put in seemingly to show that they are impractical. Then he says that smoke and steam cannot be got out of the tunnel on foggy days. On any fine day, conditions being favorable, he will send any one through the tunnel to see how safe it is. After listening to Mr. DEWEY one is apt to go away with the impression that the New York Central is the most abused corporation in the world, and the Fourth Avenue Tunnel cannot be improved.

But here are the facts: Without mechanical ventilation any lighting system is bound to be a failure. On foggy days the air is stagnant in the tunnel, and the smoke and steam, which are far more dense than the fog, combine with it and form a pitchy blackness impossible to penetrate. On foggy or any other days this smoke and steam can be exhausted from the tunnel by proper appliances. On some very clear days the central tunnel may not be so dark, but most days it is a hole of danger. It is the smoke and steam from the locomotives that obscure the signal lights, and they can only be removed by ventilation.

If the New York Central is honest let it cease its opposition to the Sulzer-Hynde bill, which only asks that the tunnel be made safe, and gives the method to the Company and the Board of Railroad Commissioners, which it is said to control. Don't, Mr. DEWEY, say you want the tunnel freed from danger and then throw every stumbling block possible in the way.

Mandatory action by the Legislature is necessary. It is the public's only relief.

WHY?

One fact relative to the passage of the Cable Railway Company's bill, which gives away seventy miles of New York's streets and which has passed one branch of the Legislature, has escaped attention. It is this: When the bill came up a year ago a most vigorous protest was entered by the city government. RICHARD CHICKEN personally sent for the Tammany members and urged them to fight the bill tooth and nail. This year the city has made no protest against it at all. And the public may ask the question: Why?

That it is a job bill no one will deny. Everything honest should be against it. Every one having the interest of New York City at heart should oppose it.

The fight between CLAUDE SPRICKLES and the Sugar Trust appears to have come to an amicable conclusion. The former is not to sell his sugar east of the Missouri River, and the HAVEMAYERS are not to invade the territory west of it. The price of sugar is to be kept up and the people to pay the piper. This looks like a reversion of the saying, "When rogues fall out honest men come to their own."

A new bill to grab Battery Park for railroad purposes has been offered in the Assembly. The man behind it is the head of a land syndicate in Westchester County, and his motive is personal benefit rather than the good of the people. The bill should be put upon.

The formation of a new and greater New York, to include this city, Brooklyn, Staten Island and other outlying suburbs, has met with the unanimous vote of the Commissioners appointed to consider it. New York cannot be made too great.

The fight of the journeyman painters against their employers for shorter hours has been won after a brief struggle. It may prove the first skirmish in a prolonged warfare.

A Birmingham, Conn., woman has been voted an honorary member of the Fire Department in that city. Putting out fires is a new field for female industry.

It is the duty of every State in the Union to put its shoulder to the wheel and make the International Fair at Chicago as great a success as possible.

Judge ALLEN B. PARKER announces that he is not a candidate for Governor of New York. Here is a grain of comfort for JONES and FLOWER.

Senator ELLISON seems to be in favor of the World's Fair being kept open Sundays, and the people are with him!

Boroda decided yesterday that America has a literature of her own. This is encouraging information.

The STICKLESS have been invited to Gov. HILL's party on April 15th.

Massachusetts is said to want BLAINE for President.

THE WAYS OF WOMAN FAIR.

Fads, Fashions and Fancies That Delight the Gentler Sex.

Green is the Fashionable Color—How to Train a Child to Sew—To Clean Jewelry—Infants' Frocks—Brides Can Always be Distinguished—Facts About Women.

Green is a good color. It is the fashion just now. It is too good, that, everybody can wear, for it is Nature's own shade. There are no less than forty-one different tints, and it crease, lettuce, fern or emerald is not your shade try mignonette, citron, olive, blue grass, peacock or asparagus.

Don't experiment on a good dress. Try and make a cotton gown. Make it not to wear, it is like silk, and if you succeed in getting something like this then try the material.

Give your little girl a big doll. Give her new, give remnants of silk, cloth, gauze and wool and you give her the best means of becoming a nice sewer.

A new fad among the truly exclusive is to have gloves the color of the gown stitched with the shade of the trimmings.

The frocks worn by infants after they leave off long boots come each season more beautiful and more elaborate. The loose shape which falls from the yoke to the feet, without any indication at the waist unless a sash is worn, is made not only in main but in heliotrope silk, for nothing would now seem to be considered too elaborate for our young people.

Ninety-nine per cent. of all the brides "go away" in gray gowns, which gives them away quicker than their new trunks.

The following recipe for cleaning Breton and all silver ornaments was given by a jeweler. Take some spirit of ammonia undiluted, apply it to the ornaments with a small brush, and brush them well; then dissolve a piece of soft soap as large as a walnut in a basin of hot water, and clean the ornaments well in it; dry them with a soft handkerchief, and put them in a box of dust. I have always found the best way of preserving silver was to keep it from the air. I wrap my silver ornaments in silver paper, and lay them in a tin box lined with arrowroot—dry arrowroot.

A writer in the De Wolf Press has made some new discoveries in the ways of woman. He will marry a man to "reform" him, and though clothed in rags declare she is happy with the brute.

See can't throw a stone because she isn't; that way, but she can see a world of paths into an appeal for a new dress that will burst the toughest purse-string—sawdust. She is usually more adept at making matches than at striking them, and while no man will know how to sharpen a knife, she can in two minutes hone up her tongue in a way that will make it sharper than a two-edged sword.

She may not be able to jump a four-barred fence, but she jumps to conclusions, and nine times out of ten she gets there while a man is reasoning it all out.

She can quicken a man's mental faculties by giving him pieces of her mind. She doesn't seem to feel the loss, either.

True, she spends much of her time before the glass; but so does a man, only his too often has a head on it.

According to some, she was called woman because she brought love to man. The interpretation, however, is not only not Scriptural, but is not more dated by the facts.

She is also called a cannardine; but we will never give her up—never!

With all her faults, we love her still.

SPOTLIGHTS.

Two vessels laden with just recently come into port. They could not deny they had just-able freight.

It is no sign that a man has been fishing because he comes home with a reel.

Italy has been "monkeying" with this country for a long time.

What a lot of human wafers want now is to get a lock on their "grip."

Love, like no other enterprise, only succeeds when you brain it.

With her company, just heart in it.

Electric lights ought to be used on Arctic explorations.

Mr. Blaine will have a worse attack of gout at the end of his term of office.

Box-hunters should be "padded" and wear a "mask."

Sarcasm is the virtuous-throwing of conversation.

Matt Quay is not straight, and if he were he is not the boss for us.

They No Longer Speak.

"My mind is made up," said the subretriever. "I've got a new friend of yours was made up."

"I know."

SPORTS OF FIELD AND RING.

Lyman and Daily Under Forfeit to Meet in a Finish Fight.

Actor Clark's Team of Baseball Actors Going on the Road.

Jack Lyman, of this city, and Eddie Daily, of Providence, were to have fought to a finish last night, but their many friends and admirers were doomed to disappointment. Both men were there, but Lyman was very much overweight and the fight had to be postponed for several weeks. Daily looked as fine as a fiddler, and doubtless would have made the fight of his life, as he was so anxious to get at his man that he was willing to waive the question of weight, but his heavier more discreet and would not permit him to do so. Lyman had been down to weight, but he caught a severe cold and was laid up in the house for a few days. Each side put up a forfeit of $50 last night in case there should be another slip up when the appointed time arrives. It is to be a kid glove fight to a finish in private.

The Emerald Gun Club held their regular monthly meeting last night at the Kenwood House. It is more than likely that at the next meeting of that body Louis Schormeyer, the crack wing shot of the club, will be tried for going into a heavy shooting gallery and missing everything he shot at, and especially the clay doves which ran across the room on a string. There were members of other gun clubs present, who gave the Emerald's great trap shot the hearty laugh. The shooting done by Gill, of the Lake Ronkonkongs Gun and Fishing Club, was excellent.

The members of the Titan Athletic Club are making great preparations for the "slang" they are going to hold April 25.

Johnny O'Hagan will row during the coming season under the colors of the Metropolitan Boat Club, instead of the Crescent, as has been erroneously stated.

The coming fight between Peter Jackson and Jim Corbett, which takes place in the California Athletic Club May 31, is attracting much attention at present throughout the country.

The Titan Athletic Club held a practice run from Weehawken to Fort Lee and return, a distance of about seven miles, and finished in the following order: J. Hoag, S. Murphy, P. Ryan, J. George, Stewart, McKelroy. Time 45 minutes.

Harry K. Clark is preparing to take a baseball team of actors on the road during the coming season. They will do the little-league actors as well as ball players, and their plan of operation is to play half during the afternoon and in the theatre at night. They will travel through New York, Pennsylvania and Connecticut. It is an entirely new scheme, as Mr. Clark took the five A's on a similar trip once and made considerable money for the company.

There will be a lot of eighteen people in the company in all, and they will be able to give a show worth seeing. The start will not be made until the big musical companies disband for the season in May. Amateur clubs out of the city desire dates can make the necessary arrangements by communicating with Harry K. Clark, 173 Broadway, New York City.

Manager James Mutrie has decided to take the New York Club down to Staten Island April 30 or 31 and play an exhibition game with the local team. He has secured a grandstand at Livingston. Sharrett, who lives on the island, will pitch for the New Yorks that day.

The Union Athletic Club has decided to postpone the athletic entertainment they had planned for last night. They will make an effort to have it take place two weeks later.

A prize fight between Charles Stover, colored, and John McInerney, white, of Jersey City, two-bout weight, for a purse of $100, took place last night in a well-known sporting house in Jersey City. The fight was a good one, and both men were present and when the sport was at its height they could collect as much as $100, and did not even leave until the fight was over.

Very good fight while it lasted, but the color of the fight was much for the fight, and in the third round for a vicious blow on the face, which was a severe one, while Stover escaped without a scratch.

The fight between Paddy McInerney and Anthony McInerney, when both were put out for some reason or other, will in all probability take place in a few weeks. McInerney said he would start the fight at a time as soon as the backers of McInerney have covered his money, which they will do in a day or so.

THE CLEANER.

Swinging down the wide lobby of the Fifth Avenue Hotel last evening was a leonine looking man, with his derby awry and a passed buttonhole in his coat. It was my old friend George Francis Train. He is at present churning with wrathfulness over our conduct towards Italy, which he thinks is outrageous. "Payson" is never so fierce that he does not suffer at the sight of a child, and he stopped in a violent speech to shake hands with a little girl. I found my good friend in rather pessimistic strain. I really fear that George will have to run around the world again, take a trip in an airship or write to the Shah of Persia in order to compose himself. Telegrams to Blaine are not enough.

In the lobby of the Casino the other night I saw a memento of Gen. Sherman which is a very interesting souvenir. It is the autograph letter of acceptance from the General of Mr. Aronson's proffer of a box for the "Military Night" at that theatre. The decorated bill of the evening and the letter are neatly framed.

Quite a crowd gathered around an express wagon, on Broadway, which was unloading in front of the Aqueduct Building. The load was of heavy blocks of white metal, which, although silver may be looked down on by philosophical financiers, was something for the man with a nickel in his pocket to gloat over. He gloats.

Cigars at the theatre are apt to get a little too moist, and I saw in a tobaccoist's a mound to prevent this. A terra-cotta brick is put in the box, and it absorbs the moisture, so that you can smoke your cigar without having to write it out first.

I saw Senator Eugene Ross for a moment the other day. He looked sleek, rosy and plump. Pointing may be teaching. Eugene may be wrinkled, but it is not expressed on his smooth and still boyish brow. He had run down from Albany as usual for Sunday, and so far had escaped the grip.

With a very restless (!) spirit I dared to ask a son of Palermo, the cradle of the Mafia, if he belonged to that picturesque body of assassins. He had already shaved me, the international strain between the two nations not having driven him from the usual barbering at the old tariff. He explained the idea that the Mafia, as an organization, existed anywhere but in the air, and explained to me that in his sunny Palermo if a man was a tough or a bum they said he belonged to the Mafia. It simply meant that he was a low-down rascal.

Clyde Fitch, the playwright, will sail for Europe on the 22d of April. He has a play in hand which he has to have its first production in London. Fitch recently received the distinction of an invitation from the "Hasty Pudding" club of Harvard to a rehearsal, an honor the club has only bestowed on Howells and Twain. He has been working very hard, and the change of a trip abroad will doubtless benefit him.

I hear that John Ernest McCann, who has already won a name and fame as the writer of charming verses, is on the high road to success as a dramatist. He has recently had two plays accepted, one by Augustin Daly and the other by Robert H. H. Hudson. The latter, I understand, is so delighted with the play, that he proposes to bring out the play at once, and will appear in it before the close of the present season.

One of the striking portraits in the Academy Exhibition is that of the venerable ex-President Noah Porter, of Yale University. It is an excellent and faithful likeness, and it was painted by one of his daughters, who is a graduate of the Yale Art School. Although it is not hung in a conspicuous place it attracts the attention of many visitors at the Exhibition.

There is nothing an actor likes so well as to see a play. People would be surprised if they knew how rarely a popular player is able to give himself the pleasure. I saw Herbert Kelley at the initial performance of "The Betrothed," a quiet but most effective spectator.

I saw an amusing scene on a cross street yesterday. A very elegantly dressed woman who was walking slowly along was appalled to find that she was being followed by a man in a dark suit. She looked back and saw that the man was following her. She looked back and saw that the man was following her. She looked back and saw that the man was following her.

Wings—Thank you, but it really isn't so bad as all that.

Taking No Risks.

Mrs. Gadsby—It is true, as I've been told, that your husband is a good telephone.

Mrs. De Beure—Why, no; that's a silly story; he only asked pap's consent that way.

She—His face is handsome when it is in perfect repose.

He—And that is after the light is out.

A Grammatical Echo.

"Who do we work for?" demanded a labor orator.

"Who answers?" "Who?" "If that were in Boston," remarked a Bostonian.

He—And that is after the light is out.

He Appreciated the Situation.

She—How delightful to sit out under the trees and listen to the concert by nature's (rebusmatically)—Yes, indeed, and it doesn't cost a red cent, either.
